Supporting the Mission of the Academic Library

LexisNexis Canada is dedicated to meeting the needs of academic librarians and promoting information literacy with the LexisNexis Academic and LexisNexis Academic Plus services.

Easy Access

Campus-wide access using IP authentication, support for secure remote access methods, unlimited simultaneous users and no search limits make LexisNexis Academic available to all your users.

Interoperability

LexisNexis Academic works with the systems you use to manage your electronic holdings and put the right content in front of your patrons.

- e-Journals systems
- Article linking
- Federated search/metasearch
- Citation export to RefWorks

Training and On-Demand Support for Librarians

Professional training and toll-free telephone support are available to librarians at subscribing institutions. Our academic training team conducts on-site and web-based training sessions throughout the year. Our customer support representatives are on call to provide technical support and to answer your questions about content, product features and search strategies.

Content Review

LexisNexis aggressively pursues appropriate new content. Our advisory committee, made up of librarians from diverse academic institutions, reviews content additions and adheres to our collection development policy.

Permalinking Capability

Permalinking enables users to easily capture and share links to documents for a variety of purposes, including:

- Bookmarking documents in a web browser for easy access at a later time
- Adding document-level permanent links to user guides or course syllabi

- Sharing links with others on social media sites
- Emailing links instead of full documents

Pricing

Pricing is based on your institution's full-time equivalent (FTE) enrollment, and substantial discounts are given to community colleges and library consortia to make LexisNexis Academic an outstanding value for all subscribers.

News

You can search the entire news library at once, choose a source group such as U.S. Newspapers, or select popular individual sources such as The Globe and Mail, The New York Times or Financial Times. On-screen tools make it easy to search within document sections or to add connectors and index terms.

Whether you're looking for current news information, or information going back 25 years, LexisNexis Academic supplies a wide variety of authoritative sources, including:

- Full text of more than 2,500 newspapers from Canada, the U.S. and around the world. Many of these are updated on the same day of publication. Plus, extensive archives going back 25 years or more

Powerful Source Selection

Search for a source by name or use the source taxonomy to identify sources by type, language, topic, geography and other facets. The Source Information feature shows LexisNexis coverage details and enables you to determine how frequently it is published, how quickly it is available, who publishes or provides the source, typical content and searchable document sections.

SmartIndexing Technology

LexisNexis SmartIndexing Technology™ is at work throughout LexisNexis Academic to help guide users to the information they need. SmartIndexing applies controlled vocabulary terms for several different taxonomies to all LexisNexis news and business content. Sources are also indexed, making it easy to locate publications in the Source Selection tool by attributes such as publication type, language, geographic region and main topics covered.

The taxonomies are built and maintained by the LexisNexis Taxonomies and Indexing team, including information professionals, lawyers, subject matter experts and analysts. Index terms are assigned using a unique approach that combines the best features of human and automated indexing practices. Index term rules are developed and tested by the Taxonomies and Indexing team. These rules are used to assign relevant index terms automatically to documents and sources. All news and business content is reindexed every quarter to ensure that indexing is consistent, comprehensive and up-to-date.

Flexible Display and Output Options

LexisNexis Academic offers flexible output options with full-featured tools that allow for printing, emailing and saving.

Users with a subscription to RefWorks can export citations directly to their RefWorks account.

See www.refworks.com for information on the RefWorks service.

Results Clustering

Results clustering technologies have been steadily gaining popularity with information systems designers and users and LexisNexis has created an exceptionally powerful implementation based on LexisNexis SmartIndexing Technology. When a search in LexisNexis Academic produces more than one hit, results are returned in the form shown below.

Results clustering provides an instant, multi-faceted analysis of the distribution of hits in each result set. It is a powerful tool that allows users to filter their results sets and get to the information they need quickly and easily. It also has an important heuristic role. Results clustering familiarizes new users with the different classes of content in LexisNexis Academic and allows them to visualize the effects of different search strategies.
