

LAW LIBRARIAN NEWSLETTER

Spring 2018 Edition

Hi,

Welcome to the Spring 2018 edition of our Librarian Newsletter. The theme this quarter is the next generation of legal professionals and their perspective on the work place.

We thought Emily Deere, a Research Librarian with the Ontario Ministry of Finance would have an interesting perspective to share with our readers. Emily provided the feature article and in it she provides training and career advice for what you may not have learned in library school.

On the same theme, Rebecca Vasluianu, Securities and Mergers & Acquisitions Content Lawyer, LexisNexis Canada, had some sage advice for lawyers on how to impress clients and internal colleagues and manage deals effectively.

LexisNexis Canada is a proud supporter of the 2018 Annual CALL Conference in Halifax. On Tuesday, May 29, we are hosting a breakfast demo featuring our leading and innovative legal products. Please join us in conference room "Nova Scotia CD" at 8:00 a.m. if you are attending CALL 2018. We hope to see you there!

Enjoy the newsletter!

Feature Articles

What Library School Didn't Teach Me | Emily Deere

Google "what I didn't learn in library school" or "what library school didn't teach me" and you will find a number of abstracts and conference proposals. A quick scan of the first page of the results included an article from a teen services librarian, an academic librarian and a blog dedicated entirely to the topic. Since these articles are not a new occurrence, nor are they confined to one field of librarianship, I began to wonder what the problem was and why does it not seem to have been definitively addressed? #### Ways to impress your clients/colleagues and manage deals effectively | Rebecca Vasluianu

Don't forget other practice areas: Anticipate the need for document review by other practice groups (i.e. tax, environmental, IP). Involve them early on in the transaction and keep them apprised of updates. You'll develop good working relationships with those lawyers and avoid any oversights. Colleagues appreciate team members who plan ahead to avoid items being missed. Read more

Top Picks from The Lawyer's Daily

Case headed to Supreme Court will have impact on future voyeurism decisions, LEAF says | Amanda Jerome

An Ontario Court of Appeal decision regarding a teacher caught secretly filming his female students with a camera-pen has inspired the Women's Legal Education and Action Fund (LEAF) to act as an intervener as the case heads to the Supreme Court of Canada. Read more

Access to Justice: Current crop of law students committed, enthusiastic | Thomas Cromwell

It is easy to get discouraged by the slow pace of progress on improving access to justice. But a constant source of encouragement is the enthusiasm and commitment of the current generation of law students. Read more

Privacy and the Charter: Assessing the right to be forgotten | Keith Rose

In January 2018, following public consultation, the Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada (OPC) issued a draft position paper suggesting that a de-indexing right may already exist in the Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA). This was followed by a parliamentary committee report in February recommending that Parliament consider amending PIPEDA to define an explicit de-indexing framework. Read more
