

Follow developments and movements within the Federal Trade Commission

As an offering within MLex™, FTC:Watch™ offers unparalleled coverage of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department's antitrust division. FTC:Watch closely tracks the agencies' actions in the competition, consumer protection and privacy arenas. Our seasoned journalists — including former members of the FTC — offer a revealing look at regulatory efforts involving Big Tech, mergers and acquisitions, pay-for-delay schemes, and everything in between. Since 1976, FTC:Watch has provided advanced news, rich commentary, and invaluable analysis, painting the full picture of the politics, issues and trends shaping regulation in Washington and beyond.

FTC:Watch is published twice monthly and is available both online and via email alert. When accessing it online, you can also search a database of archived issues since 1994.

Our subscribers include most of the AmLaw 100, think tanks, universities, and top regulators around the globe. Subscribers rely on FTC:Watch to stay abreast of key changes, decisions and trends that may affect policy and regulation.

Exclusive interviews with current and former commissioners

Get the inside track on the key players from exclusive interviews with the people who are making the regulatory decisions. Understand the politics, viewpoints, motivations, and reflections from both current and former FTC commissioners.

In-depth review of issues and decision-making trends

Get the story behind the headlines with investigative reporting that critically covers precedent-setting investigations, trials, and decisions. The level of analysis provided is unmatched — no other news outlet covers these agencies or issues in the level of detail that FTC:Watch provides.

Insightful coverage of legal community impact

FTC:Watch aims to give an insider's view into how enforcement agencies operate. Understanding how these agencies go about their work allows readers to better anticipate decisions in their own cases.

A newsletter like no other.

FTC:Watch has a track record of securing exclusive interviews and providing fresh insights not found in other publications.

Request a free 30-day trial at LexisNexis.ca/Try-MLex-FTCwatch

About MLex

Our investigative reporters are on the ground where you need us the most. We break news on developing regulation from the earliest stages of industry consultation through to enforcement and litigation in key jurisdictions across North America, Latin America, Europe, and Asia. MLex experts provide insight that isn't available elsewhere — our relationships with local sources allow you access to information before it is public. You can count on MLex not only for news and updates, but also for expert analyses that explain how businesses are affected, case files that show the history of a particular issue, and source documents from regulatory agencies.

REQUEST A FREE TRIAL AT:
LexisNexis.ca/Try-MLex-FTCwatch

LEARN MORE

MLexwatch.com/FTCwatch | MLex Podcast

North America: +1-800-356-6547 | U.K.: +44-800-999-3237 | HK: +852-2965-1424

mlex™
a LexisNexis® company